WAR WILL END NEXT OCTOBER SAYS WILHELM

Germans Expect Quick Capture of Warsaw Followed by Crushing Drive Against Calais And Paris--Offensive Is Continued.

Paris, July 19.—(By William Philip Simms.)—Quick capture of Warsaw then a crushing drive against Calais and Paris.

That is what is believed to have been meant by the Kaiser when he said a few days ago, "Germany will win the war by October."

The French are prepared for any drive on the capital or seacost town. Officials here are not worrying over the German plan.

London, July 19.—General von Hindenburg's offensive against Mlawa and Riga in the Baltic provinces is continuing. The Germans claim "important results" in this district and the Russian official statement says that the Germans have retained their positions on the right bank of the Windau and Venta rivers and are consanysz, Siberian detachments from Autz. The German statement says that General von Buelow's army, which crossed the Windau north of Kursiany, has met with successes, capturing nearly 2,500 officers and men.

Russian troops turned defeat into victory on the Orzyc, east of Przasnysz, Siberian detachments from Turkestan, greatly outnumbered, displaying great courage. Three German regiments had captured the village of Podossi, taking five Russian guns and crossover into the village and recovered the guns.

Quiet In Flanders

Paris, July 19.—The official communication issued by the war office says:

In Artois the cannonade has diminished in intensity. Some shells were fired into the town of Arras. On the right bank of the Aisne in the district of Troyon, there has been fighting with mines, as well as a very violent bombardment. Twenty shells were thrown into Rheims, one civilian being killed and one seriously wounded. On the heights of the Meuse the Germans after last night's bombardment launched a violent attack against our position from the Calonne trench to the village of Les Eparges. On the southern ridge of the Souvaux ravine they succeeded at only one point in regaining a footing in the trench section which we captured on July 6. Some parties of Germans who succeeded in creeping into the ravine were killed or taken prisoners.

Between the Souvaux ridge and the Calonne trench the enemy was also repulsed with heavy losses.

There has been a continuous bombardment in the forest of Apremont.

Former Local Man Drowns--Funeral To Be Held Here

Dr. M. E. Dawson, 51, a former resident of Coshocton county, was drowned Sunday near Lorainger, Louisiana, according to a telegram received by local relatives Monday. Dr. Dawson owned a farm near Lorainger and it is presumed he was drowned in a river which runs through his farm. The telegram did not give the particulars of his death. The body will be brought to this city this evening for funeral and burial.

Dr. Dawson was born near Willow Brook, this county, and taught school at West Lafayette and other places for several years before he entered Western Reserve Medical college, from which institution he was graduated with honors as class president in 1895.

After practising medicine for several years in Otsego, Hanover and Gnadenhutten he gave up his practice four years ago and bought a large farm near Nabb where he lived until last March when he moved to Louisiana. He was engaged in stock-raising and orange growing at his farm in that state.

Dr. Dawson was a member of the Christian church and a man of admirable characteristics which had gained for him the respect of all those with whom he had come in close contact.

In 1887 Dr. Dawson was married to Miss Ollie Tredway. To that union one child—Mrs. Ethel Thompson, Cambridge, O.—was born. He was married again in 1898 to Miss Martha Jane Riney of Otsego who, together with their two children—Harold, 16, and Helen, 13—survives.

Besides the wife and children he leaves two brothers and four sisters. The brothers are: J. Q. Dawson, South Eighth street; Prof. W. M. Dawson, Yellow Springs, O. The sisters are: Mrs. C. W. Teach, of Coshocton; Mrs. Charles Bantum, of Warsaw; Mrs. George Nosker, of Columbus, and Mrs. John Stone, of Pledger, Texas.

A brother, Clyde, was drowned about twelve years ago along the Delaware coast.

The body is expected to arrive on Pennsylvania train No. 31, at 10:19 o'clock this evening. It will be taken to the home of J. Q. Dawson on South Eighth street. The funeral will be held at the Second street Christian church Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock by Rev. C. Howard Rank. Interment will be made in the South Lawn cemetery.

Sondles Is Arrested on Bad Charge

A warrant was sworn out Monday by Mary Sondles against Frank Sondles charging the will-o'-the-wisp husband of Mary with not supporting his family. The offense is alleged to have been committed in Scottdale when Sondles is said to have given a check to William Evans. A date has not been set for his hearing.

JOHN HORNUNG

Five Hundred dollars is the price on this man's head as a result of affidavits filed by Bank Examiner H. C. Blackman charging that Hornung embezzled the funds of the National bank at Dresden.

Hornung is a fugitive and sheriffs in every county in United States have been notified to be on the look out for him. It was stated Monday by Sheriff Evans, of Muskingum county, that the fugitive is not in Ohio at the present time. He intimated that he had positive information concerning the whereabouts of Hornung last Monday, when an attempt is said to have been made to locate him at this place, he was not there. It is believed that he took with him, when he left Dresden more than a week ago, a considerable sum of money.

The amount of Hornung's shortage will not be known until the examination of the bank's books has been completed.

The cut shown above is from a snap shot taken a short time ago and is an excellent likeness of the missing man. This is the only photograph taken of him since he had a mustache shaved off some time ago. The photograph taken when he was wearing a mustache gives one but a poor idea of his present appearance.

TO FIGHT AGAINST SLAVERS

Chairman Of Civic Reform Union Will Organize Club In Coshocton

IGNORANCE CAUSE OF IMMORALITY

Federation Will Be Requested To Take Charge Of Local Organization

So that Coshocton girls may be informed as to the methods employed by white slavers, Albert Sidney Gregg, superintendent of the American Civic Reform Union, of Cleveland, arrived here last night and will make arrangements for a campaign of education.

The tracing of white slave victims has become an important duty of the Union but the idea of the campaign is to warn innocent girls so that they may not be deceived.

Following investigations throughout the world, the Union makes the statement that "Ignorance is the principal cause of white slavery and immorality." After this conclusion leaders of the union, believing that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, have commenced the establishment of "Daisy Circles" in cities and towns throughout the United States.

Mr. Gregg will today confer with some of the officers of the Coshocton Federation of Woman's Club so that he may form a "Daisy Circle" here. The object of the circle is to read and circulate books on sex hygiene, eugenics and white slavery and to warn and rescue wayward girls.

What It Means.

One of the women in the Federation will become a leader of the circle and it will be her duty to enlist at least five girls who will serve as officers in the circle. Books are furnished for circulation by the Union. All questions of law that may arise are answered at headquarters free of charge and the leader of the circle is supposed to report promptly all cases of missing girls to the Union. Through connections with the Federal and various state and municipal police forces the Union has been quite successful in locating missing girls.

Mr. Gregg has appeared on the local Chautauqua platform and at local churches. It is quite probable that the Federation will take up his plan and perfect the organization of a local circle.

Albert Sidney Gregg, superintendent of the American Civic Reform Union.

Unfortunate Girl Taken to Infirmary

Dollie Lane and her eleven months old child were taken to the county infirmary Monday afternoon. As the law provides that a child can not be kept at the infirmary after it is a year old, further arrangements will have to be made to take care of the child.

It will be remembered that Miss Lane was driven from the home of Mrs. Kincade on Water street a few days ago and was forced to seek lodging at the police station. Saturday a home was found for her at the home of George Ross of Wild Turkey Lock. Sunday while she was left in care of the premises, pigs, belonging to Ross, escaped from the pen and were upon the railroad tracks. As she tried to drive them off, she was almost run down by a Wheeling and Lake Erie passenger train. In her effort to avoid being run down, she fell and severely bruised and twisted her back and sprained her ankle. She was then unable to care for herself and child and, as Mrs. Ross is not strong, it was necessary to provide another home for the girl and her babe.

Start Work Following Complaints

Workmen were busy Monday making the temporary improvement along Adams street in order to relieve the residents of the street from the nuisance occasioned by the overflow of the sewer pipes water from the mill. The pipes are being dug up at the intersections of Adams with Fourth, Fifth and Sixth streets, and culverts built [illegible] The ditch [illegible] caused the sewer pipes [illegible] flood the premises of the residents along the street.

Workman Has Foot Broken

While at work in the Gas plant Monday morning, James Lefferme was painfully injured when a heavy piece of pipe fell upon his right foot crushing the member and breaking several bones. He was brought to his home near the Country club where his injuries were attended by a physician.

Socialist Lectures on Ownership

W. A. Jacobs, Socialist lecturer from Milwaukee, drew quite a number of listeners when he spoke on the subject "Humanity Making Good" at the court square Sunday evening. The speaker declared that there was a steady drift towards Socialism and advocated popular ownership of manufactories and the sale of the product at cost. He left Monday for Cambridge.

With two donations of $10 each, a number of $5, numerous $2 and $1 gifts, the Salvation Army fund passed the $800 mark Monday. Capt. James Asher, the campaign officer, who has been out of the city since Friday, returned Monday renewing the campaign even more vigorously than during the past week. In order that the campaign may be concluded this week it is important that all those who intend contributing to the fund, either by cash or subscription, acquaint either Capt. Asher or Capt. Ladlow of the fact as soon as possible. The subscriptions will not be due until September 1. Letters containing the campaign subscription blanks were sent out by Capt. Ladlow, Monday morning and several of these have already been returned with generous subscriptions. For the benefit of those who have been not reach with the subscription blanks or by personal solicitation, duplicates of the blanks are printed each morning in The Tribune. These may be forwarded to Capt. Ladlow at any time.

Mary's Cow Caused All The Trouble

Mrs. Mary Tasanyai pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Justice Abbott Monday on a charge of malicious slander preferred by Rosi Ughi.

The trouble started Monday morning when Mrs. Tasanyai is said to have stazed her cow in front of the Ughi woman's home. A child in playing near the animal got into danger, and Rosi Ughi claims she remonstrated with Mrs. Tasanyai and told her to take the cow away. Whereupon, she alleges, Mrs. Tasanyai called her vile and abusive names.

The hearing was set for July 22 as Mrs. Tasanyai demanded a trial. Both parties reside at Clow-ville.

George Kirk, 15, of Fairmont, W. Va., was being held Monday by the Coshocton juvenile authorities pending the arrival of his father, W. M. Kirk, a carpenter. The lad was arrested Saturday night in a hobo camp along the Pennsy railroad. He admitted that he had run away from home and was turned over to the juvenile authorities.

A man from route 7, handed Capt. Ladlow a one dollar bill Saturday afternoon saying that he dreamed Friday night he should give that amount to the cause. Rev. and Mrs. H. W. Middleton of Homesville, O., Tribune Subscribers, filled one of the blanks and enclosed two dollars.

The ready response to the Army's call shows the confidence the people in and about Coshocton have in Capt. Ladlow and his helpers. The street collections continue to average about the same, showing no decrease during the first week of the campaign.

Monday morning, Capt. Ladlow and Capt. Asher, campaign officer, will make a fresh start for the last week, at which they hope will be as willingly subscribed as the first and that the desired amount will be attained by next Saturday night.

LAFAYETTE LOSES TO KENT SCHOOL

The West Lafayette summer school ball team was defeated at Kent by the Kent Normal team Friday by the score of 8 to 4. Kent is quite a formidable opponent this year as she shut out the Wooster team by a 4 to 0 score, allowing Wooster but three hits. The Lafayette team declares that had Kent diamond been in any kind of playing condition the score would have been different. The Kent pitcher was hard hitter, nearly by the Lafayette players who secured 11 hits off his delivery. Moorehead and Lawrence each secured three hits out of four times up, on an average of .750. The West Lafayette team was as follows: Moorehead, ss, Mellor, 3b, Farmer, cf, Higgins, lf, Schorr, c, Lawrence, p, and 1b, Reed, 2b, Beck, rf, Leavengood, 1b and 2b. Kent will play a return game at West Lafayette, July 23.

The defendant alone was examined and on the strength of his admissions he was bound over to appear before the common pleas court under a bond of $500. Both parties live near Cooperdale.

Knotty Point for Jurors.

Mayor William Riddle of Atlantic City ordered a stained-glass memorial window at a cost of $100. The window was to display the figure of St. Peter. The firm completed it, and now the mayor refuses to pay the price. A suit to collect has been instituted, and the mayor's defense is that the figure of the apostle is not a good likeness. His halo and his keys are recognizable, but the mayor refuses to believe the features are those of the saint. It is a knotty problem for the court. Classical art represents St. Peter as a middle-aged gentleman with rather abundant beard; but classical art may be wrong. There are no photographs of the apostle extant, and we are not aware that he ever sat to a portrait painter. Mayor Riddle may have his own conception of what Peter looked like, but he will find it mighty hard to prove that it is any nearer actuality than the image on the stained-glass window.—Chicago Post.

Hint to Golfers.

If there is one part of the game more than another that is likely to try the golfer's patience to the utmost it is putting. When we consider that half of the game of golf is on the putting green, is not this a good reason why we should be proficient at it? But how are we to overcome this weakness on the greens?

The only real sound theory that is known for putting is to swing your putter on a dead straight line through the ball toward the hole. You can practice this method by putting the end of the putter head close up to a wall and practice swinging your putter back and forth; a pendulum movement is best, keeping the end of the putter close to the wall. Try it and see if it does not help your holing out.—Outing.

Fruit-Growing in Scotland.

Fruit-growing is to be encouraged in the north of Scotland. The Nairnshire advisory committee of the Northern College of Agriculture had before them recently a proposal to form an experimental fruit growing farm in the neighborhood of Nairn. The committee unanimously agreed to recommend it to the college of agriculture, being satisfied the conditions of climate and soil were most favorable for fruit-growing on a largely increased scale in the district.

Runaway Hits Dairy Wagon

Quite a little excitement was caused on Main street about 11 o'clock Saturday morning when a team belonging to Howard Wolfe and driven by Joseph Doll, became frightened when they were left standing near the City hall, and dashed up Main street at full speed. One of the lines broke and the wagon platform fell off near Third street. The horses continued their mad rush until they struck a dairy wagon belonging to C. J. Shaw breaking the shafts of the dairy wagon damaging the body of the same and scattering pieces of the broken bottles over the street near the railroad. The shock of the collision caused the runaway team to fall forward upon their shoulders and heads bruising and scratching them slightly.

THE BEST TEACHER

This old saying is quite true regarding LAUNDRY WORK as well as most other things.

That the average housewife is not quite satisfied with the usual DOMESTIC PROCESS is evident from the large number of new preparations and appliances constantly being placed on the market to better the methods.

Is it not reasonable, that by doing hundreds of washings each week, we learn better how to remove the stains and soils without injury to the fabric, than you possibly can with one washing?

Our best customers are those who have learned by LONG EXPERIENCE the value of our service.

Eight-Hour Ruling Hits Contracts.

Columbus, July 19.—Hundreds of street paving and other public improvement contracts let locally and throughout the state in order to secure exemption from the eight hour day on public work law, which went into effect July 1, will be affected by the opinion rendered by Attorney General Turner that the constitutional amendment for an eight hour day on public work is self-executing and has been in effect since Jan. 1, 1915.

LEO M. FRANK WORSE.

Noted Prisoner's Neck Is Swelling and His Temperature Has Increased.

Milledgeville, Ga., July 19.—Physicians who examined Leo M. Frank in the state prison here said his condition was much worse. The jagged cut in his throat received at the hands of a fellow prisoner Saturday night was swollen and his temperature was 102.25.

William Creen, who stabbed Frank, assented again that he alone is responsible for the attack. Various reports, however, were circulated, and prison officials will go to the bottom of all rumors. One of the reports said that Creen was aided by other convicts, while another at first rumor stated her attack on Frank, was planned by his friends to create sympathy for him and gain an early parole.

It was pointed out in this connection that had Creen really intended to kill Frank it would have been easy to have severed the sleeping man's head from his body. Creen remained chained to a concrete post in the prison dormitory.

One of the peculiar developments of the case was the receipt by Governor Harris of a telegram signed by a dozen citizens of near Columbus, Ga., asking that Creen be pardoned.

BABY DINES IN JURY ROOM

Court Held Mother-Juror, So Father Brings Child for Its Daily Rations.

Spokane, Wash. While the law is so stern that it refuses a mother permission to go to her baby while she is doing jury duty, there is nothing to prevent a baby going to her mother, at least that is how the law was interpreted in the court of Judge William Huneke, when baby Margaret Hroven went to the courthouse for her dinner.

Father rushed Margaret, aged three months, in an automobile to the court house. Mother gave baby her six o'clock meal, and father and infant retired, subject to hurry calls during the night.

Mrs. R. W. Hackett was serving on a jury which failed to agree.

THE 1915 CHAUTAUQUA

The Chautauqua season of 1915 begins Friday. Have you planned to attend? The Chautauqua will probably get along all right if you don't go, although it takes numbers to make it a real success. BUT CAN YOU AFFORD TO MISS THE CHAUTAUQUA?

This is a good community, considerably better than the average, but every community has its faults and he is no friend of his home town or his home county who tolerates disadvantages and actual wrongs without raising a hand or voice in protest. There are times when the highest citizenship is manifested by honest protest and constructive criticism.

This then, is our excuse for making this suggestion, or criticism, as the individual reader may view it: Coshocton is lame in her intellectual standards. There is no seat of higher learning here, as there are in so many other Ohio towns. There are no Young Men's or Young Woman's Christian Associations. There is no rallying point for communal or civic spirit. As a result, community spirit is at a low ebb here.

This state of affairs is, of course, our misfortune. It may be, to a certain degree, our fault. At any rate, such a state of affairs exists and it is up to the public-spirited, forward-looking people, and we all want to be classed as such, to remedy as best they can, these untoward conditions.

The Chautauqua offers at least a small oasis in the rather arid intellectual surroundings. It is true that our farmers have been dealt some heavy blows of late by bad weather conditions. It is true that our merchants have not had a good year. But these are poor excuses for failure to avail ourselves of the mental discipline and moral uplift which the Chautauqua offers.

The lapse of the Chautauqua would be a grevious one in the intellectual life of Coshocton county now. For ten years our people have been accustomed to these ten-day programs. They have not all been of the very highest class, to be sure. But none of them have fallen down. It has been rare indeed when anyone could say that a given lecture had better been left unsaid. The great majority of them have been well worth hearing.

There are several numbers this year of the highest excellence. The music will be good throughout. There is no reasonable excuse to be advanced by any of our progressive, high-minded people for not hearing practically the entire course. THE BEST WAY TO GET INTO THE SPIRIT OF THE THING IS TO HEAR THE VERY FIRST NUMBER. It may be that after that you won't have to force yourself to go regularly.

THAT "STABILITY LEAGUE" AGAIN

Reference has been made in this column to a new organization known as the "Constitutional Stability League" whose primary object is to take away from the people the initiative and referendum. In discussing this "League," which we surmise is composed of the most reactionary elements in the state, The Cleveland Plain Dealer has this to say:

It is axiomatic that while a fool may never change his mind a wise man is likely to change his rather often. And if individuals may at times signify wisdom by altering their opinions it is not a violent assumption that a state electorate may likewise alter its opinion. "Stability" sometimes means stagnation.

From Columbus comes the announcement of a movement started to initiate an amendment to the state constitution, the effect of which would be to prevent the recurrent submission of constitutional amendments that have already been twice rejected. Such a measure could not be resubmitted for six years after its second defeat.

In other words, if the state were this year to reject a proposed amendment to establish woman's suffrage or to make the state dry—each of these things has been rejected twice—the one such vated could not again be submitted to popular vote before 1921. Any change of mind on the part of a majority of voters within a period shorter than six years would be presumed to be an indication of mental unsoundness.

To the [illegible] of course not a matter of special interest, if any, is behind this project. It is usually indifferent as to what measures [illegible] to enact. The suggestion is not well grounded. If actually brought to a vote next fall it should be beaten.

Voters should not be asked to bind themselves not to change their minds for six or any other term of years. If it seemed wise defeat suffrage last year and appears wise to defeat it again this year, all well and good; the double repulse should not bind the state to a negative policy for a period covering the life of three national congresses.

Let us preserve the right to change our minds occasionally, even frequently if circumstances justify. The organization behind this proposed amendment calls itself the Constitutional Stability league. Before the campaign is over, some flippant person is likely to rename it the Stagnation league.

There is now in circulation in this country $4,170,000,000, more than $800,000,000 more than at any previous time—and every dollar is worth its face value here and considerably more than its face value abroad. Staying out of the war has its material benefits as well as those of a moral kind.

Henry Ford says: "The living wage makes the model town." The world is rapidly coming to know, and Henry is helping to teach the lesson, that low wages secures the most expensive kind of labor.

An exchange asks: "What has become of the old-fashioned fellow who saved money for a rainy day?" Well, he once to be getting a run for his money the last two months.

"This is the life," whispers the stately corn crop to the weather car of the meteorological bureau, and the weeds are in perfect accordance with the sentiment.

Our trade balance must simply be enormous, for all the federal reports say so, but there are a whole lot of us who don't seem to have any more money than usual.

The Wise Guy says: it is even thought that the beauty of some brides is enhanced by a discreet use of a veil.

WANDERER RETURNS AND RE-WEDS WIFE

This Enoch Arden Story From California Has a "Happy Ending."

San Francisco, Cal.—A romance of the Enoch Arden type, bridging a gap of fifteen years, with separation, remarriage and lost affection as obstacles, has just found its "happy ending" here.

Fifteen years ago Herbert Winner of this city and his wife were divorced. He disappeared. Mrs. Winner, thinking him dead, married C. Lundberg, also of San Francisco. Mr. Lundberg died a year ago.

Some months later Mrs. Lundberg's father, happening to be in St. Helena, was amazed to meet Herbert Winner on the street. The wanderer inquired about his onetime wife and three daughters, and finally decided to return to San Francisco.

One of Mrs. Lundberg's daughters is Mrs. M. B. Higuera, and she, as well as the other daughters, did what they could to revive the old love between their parents. The result was that a few days ago Mr. Winner and Mrs. Lundberg were remarried under the ritual of the Seventh Day Adventists, which church Mrs. Lundberg is an earnest worker.

They agree to love each other more than ever, still Mr. Higuera, who disclosed the romance, "feels as each seems sorry for the mistakes that separated them years ago."

DIAGNOSED HIS OWN CASE

Noted Baltimore Surgeon Told Surgeons to Remove His Appendix as Well as Gallstones.

Baltimore.—A series of delicate operations successfully performed a few days ago at Johns Hopkins hospital showed Thomas S. Cullen, the noted surgeon, demonstrated that a complete diagnosis he had made of his condition while lying on the operating table was exactly correct.

Dr. J. M. T. Finney had charge of the operation, which started out to be for gallstones. In the few minutes of waiting the two men discussed the operation. Then it was that Doctor Cullen made the diagnosis.

He said he felt sure that there was something else wrong with him besides gallstones and that something else was an incipient case of appendicitis. He said that before the operation was over and himself out of the ether that he would be minus his appendix. After most of the gallstones were removed it was found necessary to remove the appendix.

BOY'S STORY STARTS EVERYBODY DIGGING

Alleged Robbers "Confessed" to Burying Plunder at Catoma Creek Bridge.

Birmingham, Ala.—Catoma creek is Montgomery county's favorite watering place and fishing resort, but they are not doing any fishing there just now. The population of that section has turned out en masse to dig for buried treasure.

A short time ago the county jail held four alleged train robbers, men who were supposed to have gotten away with $50,000 in a holdup of an Alabama Great Southern train at Ribbville. In their day corridor at the jail was a wild-eyed, freckled and inquisitive country boy who hailed from the banks of the Catoma. The boy administered a daily third degree to his companions, going something like this:

"Where do you reckon you could find a place to hide all that money?"

Tired of his constant queries, one of the suspects finally said:

"We hid it at the Catoma creek bridge; but don't you tell anybody."

The boy was released from jail a

Temperance
(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union)

PEOPLE TO BE TRUSTED.

The reason why governments have not done and are not doing their duty toward the suppression of alcohol is, in the last analysis, says Congressman Hobson, "based on the absence of public opinion on the part of the masses as to the true nature of alcohol and the appalling results that come from its use." And Dr. T. D. Crothers, the noted expert on alcoholism, declares that "if the actual effects of alcohol were known by the people, prohibiting its use would follow as a natural and reasonable demand." To bring to the people knowledge concerning the nature of alcohol and its effects upon the individual, the family, the state, is the purpose of the organized campaign of education now being carried on throughout the land from remote countryside to halls of congress. Given the facts, the intelligent people of this nation will soon settle the liquor question and settle it right. Bring the truth to the masses!

JAILS ARE EMPTY.

The Telegram (Wheeling, W. Va.), speaking enthusiastically of the changed conditions in Wheeling, tells us that "On the 8th of July the prisoners were so thoroughly cleaned out of the workhouse that when the jail officials sent for some men to clean the jail there were not enough men in prison to do it, and the jail officials had to do the work themselves."

One instance is related of a former leader of the wets who is in the grocery business. A man who had owed him a grocery bill for four years came in the first pay day after the saloons were closed and gave him $10 on his account. He explained that now that he could not spend his money for booze, he would have it to pay his honest bills. Similar incidents are related by the hundreds from all over the state.

"INFERNAL REVENUE."

"We are told that we must have the liquor traffic for the revenue it yields, for the vast sum that flows annually into the coffers of the nation through infernal-internal revenue," said Michael Fanning, in a masterly address in Salt Lake City. "Who pays this revenue? Not the liquor dealer. The average liquor dealer in the United States last year took in $8,700 and paid out an average of $520, the difference being the liquor dealer's toll. This, in the last analysis, is paid by starving wives, besotted husbands, helpless orphans, betrayed maidenhood, blasted careers, wreck, ruin, despair and death."

WHAT DOES HE GET?

A New York business man puts it this way:

"Suppose two workingmen, quitting on Saturday, each with, say, $12 in his pay envelope. One goes to the corner saloon and spends $4 for drink—going home to his family drunk, and with $8 in his pocket, while the other goes to the corner and deliberately throws $4 out of his pay envelope into the sewer—going home sober, and with $8 in his pocket. Which is the better husband and father? What did the first man purchase with his money?"

ENORMOUS WASTE.

The man of this world is no longer indifferent to the mountainous waste represented by the saloon and its attendant vices. The statesman more than the preacher, the ballot box more than the pulpit, is called upon to confront this awful waste of human energy, this dissipation of earth's resources, misdirection of man's toil. It is by the decree of the economist, of the good statesman, the boasted practical man of business, the manager of railroads and the directors of banks, that the saloon has got to go.—Rev. Rankin Lloyd Jones.

NO JUVENILE CASES.

Recently a superintendent of the department of juvenile courts of the Kansas W. C. T. U. wrote to the juvenile court judges of the different counties of the state in an endeavor to learn the status of the work in each community. One judge reported, "We have no probation officers because we have needed none. During the past three years we have had no juvenile cases." Another judge wrote, "No children have ever been sent to institutions from this county."

GOOD BUSINESS.

The London Daily Chronicle records the fact that a large employer of labor has decided to pay the total abstainers among his men 10 per cent higher wages than the drinkers, states that he does this as a purely business proposition and in the interests of efficiency, he has no special ambition as a guardian of morality.

REVENUE FOR COUNTRY.

Ask your saloon and prohibition friends that he would do to raise property taxes for the country in case of national Prohibition?—Liquor Journal.

Anyway, we'd stop making drunkards, wives take in washing and drunkards' babies go without milk to [illegible] them.—Prohibition Paper.

LIQUOR INTERESTS DOMINATE?

Do you want to let the liquor interest dominate your parties, your public life, and your government?—Theodore Roosevelt.

U. S. NOTES WOVEN IN TOWEL

Extraordinary Counterfeit Discovered by Secret Service Agents in Washington.

Washington.—Secret service officials, long familiar with all the tricks of the counterfeiting trade, were shocked into a show of surprise when Acting Chief Moran strolled into the office with what proved to be two perfect long counterfeits tucked under one arm.

The counterfeits were duplications of the faces of a five dollar and a ten-dollar United States note, with the numerals, portraits and lettering woven into the texture of an ordinary bath towel.

SUBMARINE SINKS ITALIAN CRUISER

Carried 550 Men and Went to Bottom in Fifteen Minutes.

Berlin, July 19.—The following communication was received here from Vienna: "An Austrian submarine Sunday torpedoed and sank south of Ragusa, the Italian cruiser Giuseppe Garibaldi. The cruiser capsized within fifteen minutes."

The Giuseppe Garibaldi was an armored cruiser of [illegible] displacement. She was 1[illegible] feet long and was laid down in 1898. Her complement was [illegible] men. She was armed with [illegible] ten inch, two eight inch, [illegible] six inch, and ten three [illegible] guns. She was equipped with [illegible] armor and was capable of twenty [illegible] speed.

Ragusa is a fortified port on the Austria-Hungary, in Dalmatia, on a peninsula of the Adriatic, [illegible] thirty-eight miles northwest of Cattaro.

From the position [illegible] it is evident that he [illegible] Garibaldi was one of the ships in the Italian squadron which has been patrolling the Montenegrin coast [illegible] Austrian positions from time to time.

IRELAND IN THE WAR.

Semus MacManus, Noted Author, Tells of Enlistments in English Army.

New York, July 19.—Seumas MacManus, the Irish author, says:

"The English cable tells us that the latest punishments from Ireland fell upon the members of the Sinn Fein party—that is to say, the Young Irish party. This is particularized for fear the outside world may get an inkling of the truth that the patriotic moderates in Ireland who had been most faithful followers of Mr. Redmond up till the time that he offered himself as a recruiting sergeant for England, are more violently anti-British in the present crisis and more anti-Redmond than are the Sinn Fein 'sedeitionist' people.

"To tens of thousands of readers it will probably be news to learn that Ireland, since the war's outbreak, has been a seething pot of what the English would call disloyalty, and that the pot is boiling over. It will be news to many to hear that every day women, as well as men, are arrested and imprisoned for patriotic propaganda; that raids by the British authorities are made sometimes in the middle of the night upon the houses of people suspected of the crime of loving Ireland better than England, their papers ransacked and stolen, themselves arrested or ordered to depart; that hundreds holding posts over which Dublin Castle has direct or indirect control are threatened and coerced, and that the jail doors are opening for fresh prisoners every day in every county.

"The English authorities, failing to recruit an army in Ireland, have initiated a reign of terror. By the agency of a mendacious system, the English government has sought to impress on the outside world that Ireland, consenting in a day to forget all she had learned in centuries and in bitterness of heat of England's altruistic war motives had taken her stepmother's side in said food stepmother's hour of peril.

"Recruiting has been a tragic failure in Ireland. Mr. Redmond indulges in the recreation of speaking of Irish recruits in the hundred thousands, and his henchman, T. P. O'Connor, adds 50 per cent to his leader's figures, and cables it to American cities for the benefit of Mr. Redmond's lost Irish American following. But a warrior, English M. P. stated in the house of commons recently if Mr. Redmond spoke truthfully in his wonderful Irish recruiting figures. And, to the amazement of the house, the questioned minister naively answered:

"'Mr. Redmond's figures are not of fetish.' The London Times, [illegible] the question at rest, [illegible] to work [illegible] filling the Irish [illegible] and more than a month ago it announced the [illegible] —53,000 Irish [illegible] Sinn Fein [illegible] be Citizen Army [illegible] and held in Ireland [illegible] men for the [illegible] chiefly from the [illegible] part of [illegible] population. It [illegible] concluded that [illegible] Redmond [illegible] no laborers [illegible] blood and [illegible] the lot at [illegible] in Ireland. [illegible] few of [illegible] joined the [illegible] army [illegible] kind where [illegible] cannon fodder [illegible] whose [illegible] corn would [illegible] any [illegible].

"No, the Irish people have [illegible] stand first [illegible] and the attempt [illegible] Redmond [illegible] Irish [illegible] Grande. The [illegible] for Ireland [illegible] Redmond's [illegible] [illegible] probably [illegible] Redmond [illegible] but the [illegible] looking to [illegible] rather [illegible] the [illegible] Irish [illegible] for the [illegible] Irish."

PRESIDENT BACK IN WASHINGTON

Reply to Germany to Go Forward End of Week.

Washington, July 19.—President Wilson returned to Washington today from a three weeks' vacation at Cornish, N. H. He went directly to the White House. The president was in fine spirits.

The president has the tentative draft of a note to Germany in his mind and it will be whipped into shape following conferences with Secretary Lansing and the cabinet meeting tomorrow.

The case of the attack on the Orduna will stiffen the reply of the United States if official reports bear out the unofficial statements that this Cunard liner was attacked without warning by a submarine, and the lives of more than a score of Americans aboard her jeopardized. The Orduna was on route to New York from Liverpool and could not have carried contraband of war.

It is understood that this government desires to reply to Germany at the earliest possible moment and the third American note—which may be the last on the subject of the Lusitania's destruction—should go forward by the end of the week.

The president has not indicated his position since the receipt of the latest German reply, which was entirely unsatisfactory, but in quarters close to the administration it is believed that the American answer will be a straightforward announcement that the United States regards further correspondence on the subject as useless and it will expect Germany to observe in practice the principles enunciated in former communications of the United States. This would leave unsettled, of course, the question of reparation for the loss of lives on the Lusitania. Indulgence upon such reparation will be renewed according to belief here, but the most of the American reply probably will be a warning to Germany that further parleying is useless and this government will expect Germany's compliance with the demands for the future protection of Americans at sea.

Columbus, July 19.—In a letter addressed to the newspapers, A. P. Frederic turned upon the butler in a flash. "You must be mistaken, Jones," he said sharply.

"I think not, sir. They went away together in the automobile. He has not returned."

A long look of wonder and perplexity passed between young Brood and his stepmother.

She laughed suddenly and unnaturally. Without a word she started up the stairs. He followed more slowly, his puzzled eyes fixed on the graceful figure ahead. At the upper landing she stopped. Her hand grasped the railing with rigid intensity.

Ranjab emerged from the shadows at the end of the hall. He bowed very deeply.

"The master's books and papers 'ave been removed, sahibah. The study is in order."

CHAPTER VII.

Ranjab the Hindu.

The two old men, long since relegated to a somewhat self-imposed oblivion, on a certain night discussed, as usual, the affairs of the household in the privacy of their room on the third floor remote, not, however, without first convincing themselves that the shadowy Ranjab was nowhere within range of their croaking undertones. From the proscribed regions downstairs came the faint sounds of a piano and the intermittent chatter of many voices. Someone was playing "La Paloma."

These new days were not like the old ones. Once they had enjoyed, even commanded, the full freedom of the house. It had been their privilege, their prerogative, to enter into every social undertaking that was planned; in fact they had come to regard themselves as hosts or, at the very least, guests of honor on such occasions. They had a joyous way of lifting the responsibility of conversation from everyone else; and, be it said to their credit, there was no subject on which they couldn't talk with decision and fluency, whether they knew anything about it or not.

And nowadays it was different. They were not permitted to appear when guests were in the house. The sanctuous dinners of which they heard something from the servants were no longer graced by their presence. They were amazed and not a little irritated to observe, by listening at the head of the stairs, that the unfortunate guests, whoever they were, always seemed to be enjoying themselves. They contended, for the life of them, they couldn't understand how such a condition was possible.

Crushed Her Against His Breast.

It had been working rather smoothly at first, I mind, during the past two or three weeks. He had even been a point in the history where he [illegible] somewhat [illegible] had been. She did call up in all [illegible] attempts to supply the [illegible]. For several nights they had sat with [illegible] the voices [illegible] black days in Calcutta. Lydia [illegible] over her father [illegible] of letters he [illegible] to her mother before [illegible] marriage. The four of them [illegible] these notes and narratives [illegible] chronological order. In old, [illegible] months of married life and [illegible] had decided to devote [illegible] contrary to the compl[illegible] of the journal.

He denied himself the theater, the opera and hundred pleasures of the passing [illegible] preferred to entertain rather than to be entertained, seldom found it necessary to go into the homes of other people. Yvonne made no protest. She merely pressed Frederic into service as an escort when she desired to go about, and thought nothing of it. Whether this arrangement pleased James Brood time will show. He, too, appeared to think nothing of it.

The lines had returned to the corners of his mouth, however, and the old, hard look to his eyes. And there were times when he spoke harshly to his son, times when he purposely humbled him in the presence of others without apparent reason.

On this particular night, Yvonne had asked a few people in for dinner. They were people whom Brood liked especially well, but who did not appeal to her at all. As a matter of fact, they bored her. She appeared to be happy in pleasing him, however. When she told him that they were coming, he favored her with a dry, rather impersonal smile, and asked, with whimsical good humor, why she chose to punish herself for the sins of his youth. She laid her cheek against his and purred! For a moment he held his breath. Then the fire in his blood leaped into flame. He clasped the slim, adorable body in his strong arms and crushed her against his breast. She kissed him and he was again the fierce, eager, unsated lover. It was one of their wonderful imperishable moments, moments that brought oblivion. Then, as he frequently did of late he held her off at arm's length and searched her velvety eyes with a gaze that seemed to drag the very secrets out of her soul. She went deathly white and shivered. He took his hands from her shoulders and smiled. She came back into his arms like a dumb thing seeking protection, and continued to tremble as if frightened.

When company was being entertained downstairs Mr. Dawes and Mr. Riggs, with a fidelity to convention that was almost painful, invariably donned their evening clothes. They considered themselves remotely connected with the festivities, and, that being the case, the least they could do was to "dress up." Moreover, they dressed with great care and deliberation. There was always the chance that they might be asked to come down, or, what was even more important, Mrs. Brood might happen to encounter them in the upper hall, and in that event it was imperative that they should be able to realize how stupendously [illegible].

Finally at the o'clock they strolled into the study [illegible] Brood's cigars with the grace of real [illegible]. It was their habit to [illegible] the room, [illegible] pictures with critical, [illegible] manner [illegible] they had [illegible] from [illegible]. Twenty [illegible] minutes [illegible] to try the [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] the door [illegible] and dress [illegible] Mr. Riggs [illegible] straight.
